

Women & Prosperity: The Full Realization of Beijing+30

Parallel Hybrid Event
69th Session of the Commission on the Status of Women

Introduction

As the world marks 30 years since the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, it is important to look at the progress made and the challenges that remain in achieving gender equality. Faith and religious communities shape values, influence policies, and support local efforts that help women and girls. This side event at UN CSW69 will explore how faith-based communities can help remove barriers and create more opportunities for women and girls.

This virtual side-event aims to enhance understanding of how faith communities contribute to gender equality by showcasing successful faith-based programs that support women and girls. It will foster stronger collaborations between religious organizations, governments, and civil society to drive meaningful change. Additionally, participants will gain practical insights into integrating faith-based perspectives into gender equality policies, ensuring that faith-driven initiatives align with global commitments such as Beijing+30.

Focus areas

- How can religious values and teachings support women's rights and leadership?
- How can different faith groups work together to promote gender equality and empower women?
- What can faith leaders do to challenge harmful practices and drive positive change for women and girls?
- What are the most effective faith-based approaches for advancing the goals of Beijing+30?
